Excerpt: . . . courses; but on the true principles of commercial legislation he had no clearer light than the rest of his contemporaries. To forbid usury, for instance, he saw would be mischievous, as this world goes; because without usury there would be no lending. But he did not venture far enough to perceive that the interest to be paid on money to be lent is as fair and just a subject of bargain as any other, and ought to be as free. If he had thought it possible to make men lend their money without taking interest, he would apparently have thought it a good thing. His objection to the attempt was that it was Utopian, not that it was against the sound principles of trading. 60 also with regard to foreign trade, he saw that indiscreet endeavours to monopolise a manufacture might end in the..
