War brought the necessity of producing power with poor fuels, higher labor costs and extraordinary conditions of demand in many localities. The central station manager produces electricity to sell. He has always been aggressive in producing power at lower costs and the war has acted as an added incentive to make useful every pound of coal, every piece of machinery and equipment and every dollar of administrative and selling expense. Practical methods by which scores of central station men the country over have worked out their problems have been compiled in this book. The material has appeared in the Electrical World during the last nine months of war. In many cases, one man's idea in one issue has suggested to some other man his plan, which in subsequent issues has been presented for the industry. The industry now is entering a...
